Unparalleled Flood in Maine-One Milli Eliars Worth of Property Destroyed.
[From the Bangor Mercury, March 29.]

[From the Bangor Mercury, March 29.]

The ice in the Penobscot has again started, and the water has flowed to an unparalleled extent. There is now six feet of water in the Post Office, in Smith's Block, and secess to our office on Main street, opposite the old Hatch House, is only had through water half leg deep. Exchange, Broad, Water, Wall, Central, Main, and other streets, are now navigated with boats. It is impossible to tell, at this hour, of the damage which has been done. It must be immense. All communication is now cut off with the east side of the stream. The bridge across the Penobscot must have been carried away, together with countless thousands of lumber which lay piled on either margin of the river. The night is thick and dark, and we cannot as yet tell of a tithe of damage in the loss of lumber, mills, houses, stores, goods, &c. The loss, however, occasioned by the flood of the last twenty-four hours, cannot be less than $1,000,000! Our city has never experienced so sad a reverse. Many of our fellow citizens in comfortable circumstances twenty-four hours since, are doubtless deprived of their all. But we beg of them not to despair. Pecuniary losses can be borne and surmounted. Don't despair.—The cases of many will doubtless call, but not in vain, on the tender consideration of creditors abroad. At the first rush of water after the jam started, it was with difficulty many escaped being swallowed up. Several came near losing their lives on Smit's bridge, and it is feared in the flurry and excitement, some may have been drowned. Boats are plying in West Market square, up as far as our land office on Main street, and At the first rush of water after the jam started, it was with difficulty many excepted being swallowed up. Several came near losing their lives on Smith's bridge, and it is feared in the flurry and excitement, some may have been drowned. Boats are plying in West Market square, up as far as our land office on Main street, and above Dr. Ladd's store on Hammond street. Two-thirds, or perhaps we might say, three-quarters of the stores in the city, now have from four to ten feet of water in them. A gloomy time stis. The store on upper steambeat wharf has been swept off. The two vessels on the stocks near the old steamboat wharf, have been moved some distance from the stocks. When daylight shall dawn, an appailing spectacle will be presented. Our heart sickens at the waste of property—of the earnings of hard working, enterprising men. The elements seem to have been commissioned by special providence, to spread a pail of gloom over the business prospects of the approaching summer. But down easters will not kneck under to "seeming Providences"—their recuperative energies are great—and they will be fully commissioned and put in immediate requisition. The water is eight feet in depth in West Market square. The Penobecot bridge has not been carried away, but is in peril and will be destroyed without a doubt. The amount of lumber which has been swept down stream, and which will be utterly lost, must be immense. The whole area of the business part of our city, on both sides of the Kenduskeag, is one sheet of water, and boats proceed from one point to another, as the only means of conveyance. How long the water may remain at its present altitude is problematical. Should the ice break up below the city, it will soon recede, but we confess there is little prospect of this at present soverally easels on the stocks in Brewer, have been considerably injured. We fear also that much damage has been done at Brewer village. We have visited Fenobacot bridge. The scene of devastation there'beggars all description. The ice is pilled mou

Rev. J. N. Maffit has been preaching to crowded audiences at Ithaca. We understand that he has made an engagement to commence a series of meetings at the Methodist Chapel in Rochester, this week.

Poland is beginning again to fall into a state of fermentation. The government is alarmed, and arthe government against the people, to find an ex-

time was almost as active 😝 in London, has net reaction is made to keep down or conceal the fatal truth.

There is no appearance of this war ever terminating. After all the blood and treasure which it has already cost, in addition to the conscriptions now levying throughout the whole country, a demand is also made from the Chambers for an additional sum of twenty-five millions, for the present necessities of the war. All the tribes hitherto friendly to France have revolted. The blame of all this misfortune and mismanagement is attributed to Marshal Bugeaud.

It is reported in the political circles here, that Pierrot, the black President of Hayti, has written a very moving letter to Louis Philippe. It is meantime certain that England had offered her mediation on behalf of the Haytiens, but if it will be accepted or not is uncertain. It is somewhat singular, that though France is still at war with the Argentiae republic, yet the minister of that republic remains at Paris, where he forms a part of the diplomatic corps, and is received as such. He figures among all the relations between triendly powers.
